Dear Mr. Dulles :

I found your very "comfortable" gift upon my return [redacted] [redacted] early in January. It was the most pleasant surprise of the New Year and I thank you most heartily for your thoughtfulness and generosity in sending such a magnificent and useful piece of furniture. I shall keep it as a token of our friendship.

May I add that recent budgetary debates and the press of business prevented me from writing and thanking you earlier, my sincere apologies.

Hoping to have the pleasure of meeting with you again soon and with best personal regards, I remain,

Very Sincerely yours.
